VITAFER.

The Greatest of all Tonic Foods.

VITAFER is the essence of finest British milk, sterilized and concentrated and granulated—combined with the Glycophosphates of Sodium, Calcium, and Magnesium.

Vitafér is rich in body-building and nerve-reviving elements, the milk constituents form flesh and muscle, while the Glycophosphates revitalize the nerves and brain. This latter effect is due to Organic Phosphorus being present in the food in the particular form in which it occurs in the human body.

Vitafér is a genuine restorative, and not a mere transitory stimulant.

WELLS KNOCKS OUT O'KEEFE.

The Loser Struggles for Fifteen Rounds.

Jim Bulfinch Wells beat Pat O'Keefe, and beat him by a knock-out, but it took him 15 rounds to do it, and there were times during the contest when the English champion gave his friends anxious moments. All things considered, O'Keefe must be given the credit of a really fine performance in holding out so long, for he was greatly handicapped in meeting so big and formidable an opponent. Wells stood head and shoulders above the Irishman and, weighing nearly 14st., he had an advantage of some 25lb. in weight, O'Keefe weighing 12st. There was also that bigger handicap of Wells' extraordinary long reach to overcome. One might almost argue that O'Keefe's performance against Wells was relatively as good as that of Carpenter's, for while we have no wish to disparage the Frenchman's victory, it is as well to point out that this Wells O'Keefe met was a very different proposition to the man Carpenter fought. It is well known that for some time previous to meeting Carpenter Wells had not been as well as his friends could wish, and when he entered the ring at Ghent he seemed only 12st. 10lb.—nothing near his correct weight, whilst on the present occasion his well-being was reflected in the fact that he tipped the beam at close on 14st. and was in pretty good shape at that. Mr. Corrie's handling of the contest left nothing to be desired but whereas Carpenter nullified Wells' reach by getting in close, and won the contest by bending his man about the body, it was all to Wells' advantage that from the fourth round the referee was in the ring and continually breaking the men from clinches. This made the contest a more open one, but it did not add to O'Keefe's chance. Wells kept his left going to some purpose in the opening round, and several times followed up with the right in smart style, and thus early it looked that Wells was in for a quick victory. But O'Keefe is nothing if not plucky, and during the next two rounds we saw the other side of the picture, O'Keefe penetrating his opponent's guard with well-judged blows to the body, getting close at every opportunity. It was only too plain that Wells did not appreciate his opponent's efforts in this direction, and he became very shaky, doing a bit of holding and leaning on his man, taking care all the while to "tuck in" his stomach as far out of reach as possible. One fine right-hand blow to the lower ribs staggered Wells.

It was an anxious time for the champion, and it looked not at all unlikely that the Ghent debacle would be repeated. At close quarters O'Keefe was the master, at long range he had not the ghost of a chance, and Wells' powerful right was brought over with a frequency that boded ill for O'Keefe, who, however, took his punishment with great gameness, and handed back a good portion of it. For his men the pace was very fast for the first 10 rounds. Then they slackened up a bit, and it was pretty plain that O'Keefe was more tired than the bigger man, his blows began to lose their sting, and in the 11th round he was kept on the retreat. Wells had the contest in hand now and in the next round O'Keefe took three stiff punches to the head and jaw in quick succession. His right eye began to close in the 13th, and he again came in for the major share of the punishment, and this, like the 14th round, was all in favour of Wells, once his left-hand blow to O'Keefe's stomach practically settling the latter's chances. O'Keefe took several left hooks to the chin in the 16th, and a hard right to the same objective staggered the Irishman. It only needed the finishing blow. Another left hook put O'Keefe off his balance, and before he could recover Wells met over a smashing right to the chin. It was the end. O'Keefe fell on his face and was counted out. He had put up a sterling battle against great odds, and Wells himself appreciated this fact. He helped to carry his fallen opponent to his corner, and while the building rang with cheers for the winner, Wells pointed to O'Keefe and said, "Cher bien!"

A Natural Remedy

Time was when disease was thought to be due to the direct influence of evil spirits, and exorcism
 and magic were invoked to cast it out.

Science has taught us wisdom. The evil spirits exist still. We call them "Disease Germs," and they also must be cast out. Once lodged in the stomach or intestines, fever with its hallucinations, or biliousness with its aches and pains, is the result.

ENO'S
FRUIT SALT

is the approved remedy for driving out disease germs. Its action is quick and thorough. It clears the intestines, rouses the torpid liver to new life, stimulates the mucous membrane to a healthy action, and cleanses and invigorates the whole digestive tract.

It may be safely taken at any time by young or old.It is very effective in the early stage of Diarrhoea by removing the irritating cause.Be prepared for emergencies by always keeping a bottle in the house.

KWANGTUNG NEWS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

MUCH CHAY AND LITTLE WOOL.

Some merchants in Shi K'i having some merchandise to forward to Canton hired a launch to tow the cargo boats, and thereby thought that there would be no risk of robbery from robbers. Things went alright till the boats reached a place named Sha Wan, where the river is narrow. Suddenly the banks on both sides of the river swarmed with robbers, who at once opened fire upon the boats. Before the boats could come to a stop, and decide what to do, a native gun-boat steamed upon the scene and opened fire. The robbers then turned their rifles upon her. Meanwhile the Shi K'i militia were marched out, for the sound of the firing was distinctly heard. Presently also another steam whistle was heard, and a second river gunboat steamed round the bend of the river. The robbers seeing that there was no hope of success took to their heels.
 The militia also joined in the fighting.
 But the result of all this was that they arrested one robber, and found also two or three wounded persons, whom they carried off. The troops could not follow the robbers, for the ground was hilly and they did not know the pathways, and feared for their safety.

LITERARY NOTES.

Mr. Robert Hichens' new novel "The Way of Ambition" was issued by Messrs.
 Methuen on August 28th. It is a study of the effect produced in the life of an ambitious man by an ambitious girl, afflicted with an uneasy desire for notoriety so characteristic of the present time. The man is a composer of music and he cares only for his work, not for any rewards it might bring in. The story shows his life before and his life after marriage, and the scene is laid in London, near Algiers, and in New York.

Messrs. Methuen have published a volume of stories by Percival Gibbon entitled
 "The Second Class Passenger." The book presents a representative selection of the work of one whom "Punch" has called,
 "One of the best living short-story writers."

A new novel by Mrs. A. S. B. S. B. S. B. entitled "Bolton Stairs" was issued recently by Messrs. Methuen. This, as the title indicates, is a story of a servant's life. It follows the fortunes of Priscilla Day, who begins as a little morning drudge and in time becomes a trained parlour maid. Her working experiences and her love affairs are both kept in view, described as from the girl's standpoint.

"The Little Nugget" by Mr. P. G.
 Wodehouse, the publication of which was recently postponed, has just been issued by Messrs. Methuen. The story tells how Ogden Ford, the twelve-year-old son of an American millionaire, is placed, after the divorce of his parents, at a private school,
 and how he became the "Little Nugget,"
 the greatest prize open to members of the kidnapping profession.

In his new novel "The Remington Sentence," which Messrs. Methuen will publish, Mr. P. G. Wodehouse describes the experiences of a family brought up amid leisurely and easy surroundings in the country, and directed to earn their living in town. The opening stages take place in Chalk Farm, and the way that each of the Remingtons is affected by the "sentence" is told in Mr. P. G. Wodehouse's
 well-known and popular manner.

THE MONEY FACTOR IN

CHINESE POLITICS.

The expected has happened. The military expedition so lightly heralded proclaimed by Young China "for the punishment of Yuan" is collapsing; its hitherto armies succumb to the power of the longer purse.
 Not only the navy, but many of the rebel troops, notably those at Nanjing, have put themselves frankly up to auction, and the Southern party has no cash, but only promises of plunder to offer, in a land where loot is now scarce. Some of the heads on which Yuan has set a price will fall, and some of those who have actively plotted against the life of the President have found safety in exile, but men like Tseu Chen-hsuan and Sun Yat-sen will find, before long, a way back, if not a welcome, to the official fold—on terms to be arranged. Thanks to the saving virtue of the ready cash provided at a critical moment by the foreign banks, and to the fact that some $15,000,000 are car-marked for payment to the army under the Quintuple Loan agreement, Yuan stands for the moment supreme wielder of the long purse and dispenser of benefits. It is evident, however, that Yuan's continued command of the situation and the country's chances of peaceful progress depend not so much upon his personal influence and statesmanship as upon his ability to provide pay for the army hereafter.
 It is also evident that, if once the idea takes root that foreign loans
 will be forthcoming to provide for the payment or disbandment of irregular forces
 throughout the country, the military profession is likely to become extremely popular with the masses. All China, in fact, would insist on joining the army. It is easy enough to profess belief in disarmament; but, until the public in England and France declines to invest its capital against the Chinese Government's simple guarantee, loan floating funds are not likely to look too closely into the details of Peking's military expenditure; and it may therefore safely be predicted that the profession of arms will continue to attract the predatory classes in China, so long as they have reason to believe that the Powers will assist the Central Government in paying off actual or potential revolutionaries.

China's borrowing powers, however, are rapidly waning for the simple reason that the man in the street in England and France is beginning to realize that the so-called Republican movement was only one of many deep-rooted symptoms of unrest and social disorganization. Even the Chinese communists overseas, who at first supported Young China's revolution with fervent enthusiasm, have now ceased to contribute to its war-chest. Yuan Shikai's chances of establishing a solvent and stable Government depend absolutely upon his capacity, and that of the sober-minded Conservative party which backs him, to restore throughout the 18 provinces the former administrative and fiscal system which, with all its faults, recognized the responsibility and obligations of the Central Government and placed at its disposal certain fairly regular revenues.—The forth a protest on the part of the Christians in Peking, and these leaders have sent out a leaflet expressing their objections to the proposed legislation, in which it is urged that all the native Christians throughout the country should protest against what they believe to be a retrograde movement.

Mr. Chan apparently backs up his proposals by five arguments. He maintains first of all that Confucianism is the most perfect religion. He then refers to the past and shows that through the ages China has recognised Confucianism as its state religion. He proceeds and affirms that all countries have an established religion, and therefore China should not be without this necessary help to its stability. He further goes on to show that even if Confucianism were established, it would not interfere with freedom of faith and worship, for no one would be compelled to accept it under pains and penalties. He also maintains that unless Confucianism is established, and has the protection of the Government, it is feared that it will not be able to secure and win back the hearts of the common people to it, and therefore will not experience the advantages which come to those who follow its precepts and endorse its teachings. Such, in a few words, are the arguments, by which the Confucianists seek to win the support of legislators. On the surface, there is not much to object to in these statements, especially when we view the question from the Chinese point of view.

The leaders of the Christian Church maintain first of all that this question is outside the powers of the National Assembly to handle, and if it is to be decided at all it must be settled by recognised theologians, and where indeed in China are they to be found? The opponents of the proposal retort that it is not true that Confucianism has always been the established religion of China, for at first it was not established, and afterwards through the ages, there have been Emperors who have believed in and extolled Buddhism and Taoism and even the Nestorian form of Christianity. The objectors next tackle the statement that all nations have an established religion, and point out that the trend of modern thought is against anything of the kind. When new kingdoms have recently been founded no religion has been established, but every one has been left free to follow that form of religion, which suited him; or, indeed, if he so decided, to follow none at all. Moreover, even the old States are getting tired of these old regulations and are freeing themselves from them as fast as they are able to do so.

The question of freedom of worship for all parties is met in the following way. Confucianism, if established as, if not the only true religion, the best of those which are in the field. While this attitude is maintained, either explicitly or implicitly, the Government cannot give fair play to all parties, and most probably will, in many ways, thwart those who are seeking to establish some other forms of worship. The result of this will be that there may be, and indeed, it is likely there will be religious wars in China as there have in the West, for example the Thirty Years War. Such a calamity must be avoided if possible, and the way to avoid it is to show favour to none, but give each one a fair field and show no favour. The critics are somewhat sarcastic in regard to the advantages that would come to the country were Confucianism established. They say that it is likely that those who had no very serious convictions at all would follow this form of cult, and this system of morals, because this would bring them into favour with the Government, and thereby they would be likely to secure lucrative places and become rich. It is asked whether this form of hypocrisy is likely to ennoble the morals of the country or not?

On the whole, it would appear as if there is to be a determined attempt on the part of the leaders of the native Christian Church to oppose this proposition, and they are seeking to form themselves into an united body throughout the country in order to make their voice heard, and to have their opinions respected. What the issue will be it is too soon yet to say. One is somewhat surprised that the leaders of thought should so soon go back from their vaunted position of absolute equality for all religions; one is also somewhat surprised at the way in which some Chinese are led to extol Confucianism beyond what it claims for itself, and assume to it a completeness that it cannot sustain.

"We are used to a great deal in the matter of women's dress in Canada, but we have been shocked and shocked in England," remarked one of a party of girls from Regina, Canada, who were recently in London.

THE COCAINE CASE.

Further Hearing.

At the Magistracy this afternoon the hearing of the case was continued in which Mr. Geo. L. Duncan, of Messrs. McEwen, Fickel and Co., is charged with being in unlawful possession of cocaine and morphine, which was imported into the Colony in undue time.

Mr. F. M. Hodgson, Crown Solicitor, prosecuted, and Mr. Goldring defended. Before the re-examination of the defendant, Mr. Goldring called John Knauth, acting manager of the Hamburg America Line, who said that the s.s. Belgravia arrived on August 6th at 6 a.m. By that ship arrived nine cases marked "uridine in oil." By the Soudia there came eight cases marked "starch." The goods were consigned to a Chinese firm—the Po Han Company.

In reply to Mr. Hodgson, witnesses said he knew nothing about the matter except in the ordinary routine of business. The goods were consigned "to order," and anyone could sign for them. He did not know the shipper or the consignee. The defendant was then recalled, and his cross-examination was continued. He said he thought the Canton compradore knew nothing about this matter. He did not know the Po Han Company.

Have you endeavored to ascertain where the goods were stored after the 8th and 10th August?—I have not exactly looked into that.

Were they stored in your office?—No, to my knowledge.

For all you know they might have been in your strong room?—Possibly, yes.

Has the Canton compradore ever stated, or words to that effect, that he would hold himself responsible for this matter?—No.

Has he never offered to plead guilty to this?—Not to my knowledge.

You thought he might, perhaps?—No. It never entered your mind that he might plead guilty?—No; he would not think of such a thing.

Would the same apply to your Hongkong compradore?—Most assuredly.

Your Canton compradore is really an agent?—No. It is our own firm in Canton.

Are you aware of any other consignments of uridine to your office between the dates of these consignments to the present day?—No, none.

Neither to your office here or Canton?—Neither.

You are an amateur photographer?—Yes.

And do stereoscopic work?—Yes.

You do it on a very large scale?—Fairly so.

How much work have you done in this last month?—About a dozen plates.

You got a very large consignment last time?—Yes.

When was your last consignment of photographic plates?—About last Christmas.

Mr. Hodgson said that as the defendant had 12 dozen here and 9 dozen at his office it seemed an extraordinary quantity.

Defendant was then re-examined by Mr. Goldring, and stated that a broker was missing since August 23rd who had been in their employ.

Wong Kit, Hongkong compradore to Messrs. McEwen, Fickel, said he had been in this position for 12 years. All cargo coming to the firm came through his books and passed the godownkeeper. No cases bearing marks like those on the cases that were seized passed through the books of the firm. Witnesses slept on the firm's premises, with two other fellows. Witnesses did not know precisely what goods were in the office, as he had no tally. He did not see the cases delivered which had been seized. There were two keys of the strong room, and two for the godown. The Canton compradore had no right to store goods in the office without witnesses' permission, but he could do so without his authority.

Cross-examined by Mr. Hodgson.—He had never known the Canton compradore store goods there before. Witness had never told him to store goods there.

The case was adjourned until tomorrow morning.

CIVILISING CANNIBALS.

WHERE MURDER IS NOT CONSIDERED AN OFFENCE.

The Sydney Government have decided to bring the whole territory of Papua under control, and so put a complete stop to cannibalism. Many of the natives have already been induced to go to work on plantations, and on re-visiting their native villages after a short absence presented such an altered and improved appearance that many of their comrades at once volunteered for work on the plantations.

Judge Murray, the Administrator of Papua, is endeavoring to teach the natives the elementary ethics of civilization. They, however, look upon murder as a most trivial offence, if indeed an offence at all. One native brought before him charged with the murder of his father, crowded himself on the ground that "the old man was not much good." Another, also charged with murder, declared that he killed the man because he was a bore. "All the time he talk, he talk, he talk too much," said the prisoner.

Some prisoners are loth to quit the goal when their term of imprisonment has expired, owing to the fact that as prisoners they get comfortable lodgings and regular food. Attempts to escape are sometimes made, but many prisoners, though desirous of freedom, are deterred from making the attempt owing to fear of the crocodiles, the animals, according to their belief, being in league with the Government. One prisoner who succeeded in escaping, was so terrified by a crocodile when crossing a river, that he found out the whiteness of his own skin, and he was a bore. "All the time he talk, he talk, he talk too much," said the prisoner.

FOREIGN LADY SUMMONED.

THREE SEPARATE CHARGES.

Before Mr. Orme at the Magistracy to-day Mrs. M. S. Ogilvie, of 6 Mountain View, the Peak, was summoned for selling or disposing of intoxicating liquors at her house without having a licence; and also with receiving sums of $250.72 and $22.20 and failing to stamp the receipts.

Mr. J. H. Gardiner appeared for the defence, and said that with regard to the first summons he would plead guilty. It was a case of pure ignorance of the law.

Mrs. Ogilvie had a house, a mountain view, and took in a French lady to reside. This lady took stimulants.

Mrs. Ogilvie brought in bottles of whisky from time to time, and the lady signed bills for them.

Inspector Garrod said that the bills showed that 25 cents was paid for whisky and soda and 25 cents for beer.

Mr. Woodhouse, Asst. Supt. of Police, said that Mrs. Ogilvie advertised her place as a private hotel. There is no evidence of anyone else having brought liquor.

Mr. Gardiner—I can give your Worship an assurance that no one else has been supplied, and no one else will be supplied in the future.

In reply to a question from the Bench, Inspector Garrod said that the place was not searched.

Mr. Woodhouse intimated that there was a large number of bills—about two hundred.

Mr. Orme—The usual fine is $50 in these cases for the first offence.

Inspector Garrod said that was so, but the maximum penalty was $300.

Mr. Orme said this case was isolated, and there were exceptional circumstances. Defendant would be fined $25.

Mr. Gardiner said his client pleaded not guilty on the other two charges, and asked that the receipts that were given were only temporary receipts, as Mrs. Ogilvie had no stamps at the time. Stamped receipts had since been given.

Surge. Atty asked for the usual fine in such cases, which was $10.

Mr. Orme fined Mrs. Ogilvie $10 for each unstamped receipt.

A TRAMWAY CLOCK.

To Replace Clock Tower.

Those who use the tram have probably noticed that a new standard has been erected at the cross roads near the Post Office building, and may have wondered what it was for. Since the clock tower has been removed the loss of the time-piece has been a great inconvenience to many, but the Tramway Company have now, with their usual enterprise, decided to remedy the matter. On the newly-erected standard is to be placed a notice board of attractive design informing tourists of the places of interest to be seen and reached by the tram both east and west of the clock tower. There will also be a time table, and other useful information for travellers. Above the notice board will be placed a clock of convenient size, easily seen from any direction, and this will supply a great want, as there is no public clock within view of what might be called the hub of the city. Both the clock and the information board will be illuminated at night.

FILLIS' CIRCUS.

We are asked to state that the final performance will be given on Tuesday evening, the 16th inst., when H.E. the Officer Administering the Government and Major-General Kelly have promised their patronage.

SCOTTISH SPORT.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

EDINBURGH, August 21.

OPENING OF ASSOCIATION SEASON.
The football season, according to Association rules, has now opened. For the first time, the Scottish League is up to full strength allowed by the present rules—namely 22 clubs; and the First Division, with 20 clubs, is numerically equal to the English League. The results of the opening matches were pretty much as anticipated; those clubs which stood high on the table at the end of last campaign began the new season with a creditable victory or a meritorious draw. Thus Rangers and Celtic vindicated their reputation as monopolists by securing more freely than any of the others; Hearts of Mid-Lothian won against Aberdeen; while last year they only drew; and Falkirk again divided the points at Hamilton. The largest gain of the day was at Parkhead, curiosity attracting many to a meeting of the League record holders and the League's latest recruit—the Ayr United. Though the figures, 5-1, may not indicate it, the new comers played capitally, their forwards staggering the veterans of the Celtic every now and again, and their shooting all through was very good. An injury to the Kilmarnock goal-keeper had much to do with the heavy toll levied by the Rangers. Dumbarton played no better than did the other debutants at Parkhead; but they had the good fortune to be opposed to opponents of a class slightly removed from Celtic, and they made the most of it by inflicting a severe defeat on our only amateurs. Perhaps the best performance of the afternoon was the victory of Clyde at Aberdeen. And the only team to win against the balance of play was Dundee, who not only occupied a well-merited defeat, but actually gained full points with a chance shot which was deflected past the St. Mirren goal-keeper by one of his own side.

SCOTTISH LEAGUE—FIRST DIVISION.

- Celtic, 5; Ayr United, 1.
- Third Lanark, 2; Elgin, 1.
- Park Thistle, 2; Motherwell, 1.
- Rangers, 5; Queen's Park, 0.
- Hearts of Mid-Lothian, 3; Aberdeen, 1.
- Dundee, 1; St. Mirren, 0.
- Clyde, 2; Aberdeen, 1.
- Motherwell, 2; Raith Rovers, 1.
- Hamilton Academicals, 1; Falkirk, 1.

SECOND DIVISION.

- Leith, 1; St. Bernard's, 1.
- Cowdenbeath, 0; Dunfermline Athletic, 0.
- Albion Rovers, 1; Arbroath, 1.
- Aberdeen, 3; Johnstone, 1.
- East Stirlingshire, 1; Vale of Leven, 1.
- St. Johnstone, 0; Dundee Elginians, 0.

Most of our cricket is now of a holiday character, and few of the clubs can get together more than a scratch team. The usual match is one between Lord's XI, and the local club, and the interest is, of course, purely local.

Grange, 182; Pentland, 155.

Forfarshire, 250; Dundee Victoria, 140.

Arbroath United, 68; Perthshire, 100.

Cupar, 198; B.H.S., 148.

Clydesdale, 144; Drumpeffer, 184 for 4.

West, 128; Polso, 189 for 6.

Glenrothes, 217; Oddington, 174.
